Getting your fireworks fix in the city is illegal

Bang, bang into the room. This Fourth of July, the state will allow some counties to buy fireworks.

Plenty of fireworks can be found in Pennsylvania. / CHARLES MOSTOLLER

Light 'em up, up, up — illegally.

New Yorkers go to extreme lengths to illegally buy and use fireworks during the Fourth of July holiday.

Gov. Andrew Cuomo signed legislation in November that allowed counties to sell and use a limited amount of small fireworks if they desired. New York City was not one of the 30 counties to opt in for the privilege.

To get their snap, crackle and pop fix, individuals sometimes cross over to Pennsylvania, where the sale of fireworks is legal statewide, and risk smuggling them back to New York City.

Jeff Bell, manager of Phantom Fireworks in Easton, Pennsylvania, found this to be true with his business. Although he couldn't put a number on it, it was obvious to him where his customers resided.

"Everyone is out of state," Bell told Metro. "Most of our business is people coming from New York, New Jersey and the other nearby states." In fact, Bell said that the store rarely sees Pennsylvania residents at all because they are limited in the purchases they can make according to state law.

Instead of traveling out of state, some individuals turn to the heartbeat of the modern age — the Internet.

The majority of fireworks websites will not ship goods to any state where they are prohibited, but there are some who will. US Fireworks takes all orders but warned that "the responsibility for following your state law falls upon you, not us" according to a statement on its website.

They get away with this by shipping via cargo trucks as opposed to using the postal system, which prohibits mailing fireworks regardless of whether the state allows them or not.

The FDNY, on the other hand, doesn't care how residents got their fireworks.

Anyone possessing any kind of firework may be charged with a criminal misdemeanor, resulting in six months in jail and/or a $10,000 fine.

All it takes is a call to the police upon hearing firework pops to start an investigation and arrest an individual for possession.

Chinatown rumors

A shop in Chinatown / CARLOS LLAMAS

Those who want to stay in New York City can head to Chinatown. Mott Street is where an individual can stumble upon an illegal vendor secretly selling fireworks, shopkeepers told Metro.

- No one advertises this service but instead nods "yes" or "no" when asked if they sell fireworks beyond party poppers. This occurs later in the week, closer to the actual holiday.

Safety first. Tight security planned for July 4 in the city

Bratton / GETTY IMAGES

The NYPD wants New Yorkers to thoroughly enjoy Independence Day with the added comfort of knowing the security for the annual display over the East River is as tight as ever.

Deputy Commissioner of Counterintelligence John Miller said though there are no known credible threats for the Fourth of July, the NYPD has taken into account recent terrorist acts around the world.

"The message is, come to the fireworks, bring your families, have a great time because you're going to have one of the most well-policed, best protected events in what is one of the safest venues in the world," Miller said.

Miller said the NYPD has the "most enhanced counterterrorism overlay" planned that includes counterterrorism officers on the ground, radiation detection, camera monitoring and real-time follow-up on tips submitted through "If You See Something, Say Something."

The NYPD will also be monitoring social media activity, and Miller said there were social media clues ahead of the Garland, Texas, attacks last month, where a gunman killed two people at a cartoon drawing contest of the Prophet Muhammed.

The July 4 holiday will fall a little more than a week after terrorist attacks in France, Kuwait and Tunisia by individuals on behalf of ISIS.

A 23-year-old New Jersey man, Alaa Saadeh, was the fifth suspect arrested in the tri-state area on terrorism charges this month. Saadeh was allegedly involved in a terror plot to detonate a pressure cooker bomb at an NYC landmark.

Pricey grub

Holy Cow! Prices rise for Fourth of July barbecues

It's nearly 4th of July weekend, which means fireworks, swimming and barbecue. But for lots of New Yorkers, that's going to hurt the wallet more than usual.

The second annual Rabobank BBQ Index, a review of food prices put out by the one of the largest banks for the agribusiness and food industry, estimates that this year a barbecue for 10 people will cost $68.22. Last year the cost was $51.90.

The main expense is beef, which rose 7 percent in cost in the past year. Making the switch to serving chicken could save up to 10 percent for a barbecue host, although that could be an unpopular decision among guests. Vegetables (lettuce, tomatoes, and pickles) are the cheapest part of the meal, but are also up in cost this year, perhaps due to the drought in California.

The index is calculated using Bureau of Labor Statistics. The price estimate assumes that each guest eats " two burgers (one chicken, one beef) with a slice of cheese, five handfuls of chips, a couple of beers, a can of soda, a pickle and a couple scoops of ice cream." To plan your barbecue at a public park near you, check out the NYC Parks directory. Barbecuing is not allowed under trees, and coals and litter must be disposed in the trash. JULIA SHU

38th Annual Macy's 4th Of July Fireworks / GETTY IMAGES

Where to see NYC fireworks

Kaboom. Besides the Macy's show, there will be other fireworks on display.

Macy's may put on the biggest fireworks show, but it's not the only one. Here's where to see fireworks displays around the city along with free music, food trucks and baseball games.

Macy's Fourth of July Fireworks Spectacular

9:20 p.m.; East River, at Fulton Street and from 23rd to 42nd Street; Free
Living up to its name, Macy's puts on a 25-minute show over the East River in a display that television just can't do justice to, so go see it for yourself. The best viewing locations are along FDR Drive and the South Street Seaport, or the highest rooftop (bars) in Manhattan, Brooklyn and Queens.

Alice Austen House Independence Day Celebration

6-11 p.m.; Alice Austen Park, 2 Hylan Boulevard, Staten Island
Take in a concert on the lawn from the Staten Island Philharmonic, followed by fireworks.

Staten Island Yankees vs. Hudson Valley Renegades

Game begins at 7 p.m., fireworks to follow; Richmond County Bank Ballpark, 75 Richmond Terrace Staten Island; Tickets are $9-$18
We love Citi Field, but the view of New York Harbor and the Manhattan skyline makes this the most scenic stadium in town, even before the fireworks start.

Brooklyn Cyclones vs. Williamsport Crosscutters

Game starts at 6 p.m., fireworks to follow; MCU Parks, 1904 Surf Ave., Brooklyn; Tickets to the game are $10-$17
The night's theme is country music, so don't forget a cowboy hat.

Coney Island's July 4th Fireworks Spectacular

Fireworks start at 9:45 p.m.; Steeplechase Plaza & Coney Island Boardwalk; Free
After you check out the annual Nathan's Hot Dog Eating Contest, stick around for a fireworks show on the boardwalk.

Freedom and Fireworks Festival

Noon-10 p.m., fireworks at 9:20 p.m; 200 Morris Pesin Dr., Jersey City; Free
Liberty State Park will have food trucks, carnival rides for kids, and music from local bands to keep you busy before the show.

Crime in NYC down overall in June

Crime numbers dipped to an all-time modern low in June, according to numbers released by the NYPD on Wednesday.

NYPD numbers show 799 crimes were reported across the city last month, a drop of 8.5 percent, making 2015 the lowest June on record since modern crime gathering started in 1993.

"It was the lowest June, not only for overall crime, but burglaries, homicides and shooting incidents," said NYPD Deputy Commissioner Dermot Shea.

The number of shootings in May dropped after an uptick in May. The NYPD said gang-related homicides are up, as are homicides of people who are on parole or probation. METRO

Indiegogo. Pommes Frites crowdfunding

Pomme Frites / GOOGLE MAPS

Pommes Frites is reopening and seeking help. The Belgian fry joint was once located in the East Village until a massive gas explosion destroyed several buildings on 2nd Avenue, including the eatery.

A few months have passed and Pommes Frites is ready to reopen in the fall at its new location: 128 MacDougal Street. The small business launched an Indiegogo campaign yesterday morning to raise $64,000. The money raised will be used to cover the cost of replacing their equipment.

Although Pommes Frites had insurance, receiving a settlement is not a quick and easy process, and because Pommes Frites has been around for about 18 years, many of the eatery's assets will be considered either fully or significantly depreciated, according to the campaign page.

"In short, it's likely that we'll be getting much less than we need to reopen," owner and campaigner Suzanne Levinson wrote. MEGAN FU

Clinton struggled to fit in with Obama's White House, emails suggest Advice. Clinton corresponded with former advisers to her husband, seeking how to navigate White House.

As she campaigns for the Democratic nomination in the November 2016 Presidential election, Clinton's relationship with her fellow Democrats will come under further scrutiny. / GETTY IMAGES

Hillary Clinton struggled to fit into the government of President Barack Obama after being appointed Secretary of State in 2009, according to emails released by the State Department.

They showed Clinton turning up for meetings that had been canceled and worrying about how much time she had with her new boss, revealing growing pains in the relationship between her and former election rival Obama in the early months of her time as America's top diplomat.

In an email to two aides on June 8, 2009, Clinton was unsure if the White House had held a Cabinet meeting and whether she should attend.

"I heard on the radio that there is a Cabinet mtg this am. Is there? Can I go? If not, who are we sending?" Clinton wrote.

A State Department official wrote back that the government was holding a meeting, but not a full cabinet meeting that she needed to be at.

As Clinton sought to navigate her relationship with the Obama White House, she corresponded with several former aides and advisers to her husband, former President Bill Clinton.

They included Sidney Blumenthal, a former White House speech writer, Sandy Berger, the former National Security Adviser and Mark Penn, who served as a political adviser to both Bill Clinton and to Hillary Clinton's 2008 White House bid.

As the Obama administration was conducting a review of its policy in Afghanistan, for example, Penn emailed her and advised her not to ignore the threat posed by the Taliban.

While they were fierce competitors on the campaign trail Clinton and Obama eventually struck up a cordial working relationship in the four years she spent as secretary of state.

While she has aligned herself with the Obama administration on issues that are popular with the base of Democratic supporters such as immigration reform, she has also tried to make her own mark by distancing herself from Obama on trade.

Back in 2009, there were a few misunderstandings, according to an email Clinton sent about what she thought was a meeting at the White House. REUTERS

Six things you need to know

1 US, Cuba restoring diplomatic ties

The United States and Cuba formally agreed to restore diplomatic ties that had been severed for 54 years, fulfilling a pledge made by the former Cold War enemies.

President Barack Obama and Cuban President Raul Castro exchanged letters agreeing to reopen embassies in each other's capitals, with the Cubans saying that could happen as soon as July 20.

"This is a historic step forward in our efforts to normalize relations with the Cuban government and people and begin a new chapter with our neighbors in the Americas," Obama said from the White House Rose Garden.

U.S. Secretary of State John Kerry, speaking from Vienna, said he would visit Havana later this summer to raise the U.S. flag outside the U.S. Embassy, currently labeled as the U.S. Interests Section and under the protection of the Swiss government.

Obama and Castro seek to relegate to history 56 years of recriminations that have predominated ever since Fidel Castro's rebels overthrew the U.S.-backed government of Fulgencio Batista on Jan. 1, 1959. REUTERS

2 Human cause suspected in Washington state fire

Investigators suspect human activity, rather than lightning, sparked a grassland fire that has destroyed at least 29 homes near the eastern slopes of the Cascades in central Washington, officials said.

The so-called Sleepy Hollow blaze, which has scorched nearly 3,000 acres since erupting Sunday on a drought-parched hillside west of the city of Wenatchee, continued to smolder as more than 300 firefighters gained ground on the flames.

As of Wednesday, crews had carved containment lines around nearly half the blaze's perimeter. REUTERS

3 White House lifts ban on cameras during tours

The White House lifted a 40-year-old ban on taking photos during public tours of the executive mansion on Wednesday, delighting tourists who immediately began posting pictures on social media.

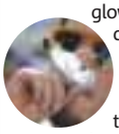
First lady Michelle Obama announced the change in a video on Instagram.

"If you've been on a White House tour, you may have seen this sign," she said, holding up a placard reading, "No photos or social media allowed." "Well, not anymore," Obama said as she tore up the sign, laughing. REUTERS

4 Crowds count down to pot legalization in Oregon

Crowds counted down the minutes to midnight then lit up joints as smoking marijuana became legal in Oregon on Wednesday, and the legalization movement spread to a fourth state.

Hundreds gathered on the Burnside Bridge in downtown Portland and smoked under the glow of a neon city sign, marking the moment that the law allowed recreational use.



Oregon residents aged 21 and older can now smoke privately, grow up to four plants and possess up to eight ounces at home. REUTERS

5 TV Land pulls 'Dukes of Hazzard' amid Confederate flag debate

TV Land has pulled reruns of the 1980s sitcom "Dukes of Hazzard," the U.S. cable network said on Wednesday amid controversy over portrayals of the Confederate flag, which is notably featured on the show's "General Lee" vehicle.

Viacom Inc.-owned TV Land declined to comment on why it has pulled the reruns, but there has been growing criticism of displays of the Civil War-era flag in the wake of the shooting of nine black churchgoers in South Carolina last month. REUTERS

6 US probing if airlines collude to keep airfares high

The Justice Department is investigating whether U.S. airlines are working together to keep ticket prices high, spokeswoman Emily Pierce said.

The Associated Press said that the department was trying to determine whether the airlines were colluding to grow slowly in a bid to keep airfares high.

"We are investigating possible unlawful coordination by some airlines," said Pierce in an email.

The Justice Department, which investigates mergers to assess whether they violate antitrust law, has approved a string of airline mergers. Most recently, US Airways merged with American Airlines in 2013, United bought Continental in 2012, Southwest bought Airtran in 2011 and Delta purchased Northwest in 2008. REUTERS

Pinkett Smith breaks it down for Channing Tatum in "Magic Mike XXL." WARNER BROS.

The queen of 'Magic Mike XXL'

THE FUN STARTS HERE

Jada Pinkett Smith injects some female dominance into the male stripper franchise — and totally steals the movie.

NED EHRBAR
@Nedrick
ned.ehrbar@metro.us

Stepping into the scenery-chewing shoes of Matthew McConaughey is certainly a daunting task, but Jada Pinkett Smith was up to the challenge. In fact, she walks into "Magic Mike XXL" and walks right away with the movie. Or struts away with it, to be more precise.

"Nobody can replace Matthew — let's just be real on that. I surely know I can't, with his fine self," Pinkett Smith says. "But I actually didn't feel the pressure, being a woman. If a man had actually played that role, that's a hard act to follow. But because I'm a woman, I knew right away that the audience's minds would have to shift, because there's just no comparison."

For the follow-up to Channing Tatum's partially autobiographical male stripper saga, McConaughey's Dallas has abandoned the boys. In desperate need of a new emcee, they turn to Pinkett Smith's Rome, who runs a private adult entertainment club catering to an exclusively female clientele.

"The role was at first written for a guy," Pinkett Smith reveals. "I was like, 'Channing, why me?' And his whole thing was like, 'Jada, I really feel like in this arena there's a sense of responsibility that we can inject in this idea.' I just really connected to how I wanted women to feel about themselves watching this movie, and adding the energy of exaltation, celebration and inspiration."

Pinkett Smith found a willing and gracious collaborator in Tatum, who also served as a producer. "With Channing, when he wanted to bring me on board, I can almost assure you there were people in the studio and people around that were like, 'Really?' But Channing had a vision," she says. "He has a really high regard for the feminine, and he really felt like, through dance, he understood that this brought women joy. In the first movie, he really explored what isn't so great about the industry itself, so in this movie he had more license to have more fun."

Pinkett Smith GETTY

In discussing "Magic Mike XXL," Pinkett Smith takes on a tone of almost religious reverence, which may seem surprising given the subject matter, but she's very serious.

"Rome looks at it as a religion and feels like women can really, truly find themselves through that," she says. "What I brought to the table was the idea of stripping away degradation and really adding a celebratory factor in this act of exaltation. It should never be demeaning, and it should never be about dominance. And so that was really what was important to bring energetically, to kind of elevate the idea of adult entertainment."

Tatum back in a thong

The "Magic Mike XXL" star is all for "equal opportunity objectification."

@metronewyork
letters@metro.us

At the end of 2012's "Magic Mike," Channing Tatum's reluctant stripper walked away from the biz. But he's back at it in 2015's "Magic Mike XXL," running off with the boys for a road trip to a convention for "male entertainers." One person not back is Matthew McConaughey, though Tatum says that did leave room for some other stars to take his place.

The first "Magic Mike" was based loosely on your past. Did any part of you wind up in the sequel?

A little bit. I did go to a stripper convention twice, actually. We had a road trip, but everything along the road trip in the film we've fictionalized.

Did you miss McConaughey?

I think we all missed him. In my opinion, he was the best part of the movie. So it was definitely a little bittersweet being there without him. But I got it. He works so hard to change people's opinion and viewpoint of him. I think he creatively had done everything he could with that role. He just didn't feel like doing that again, I guess. I get that, I understand.

But you have some new actors in this film, such as Amber Heard.

For me that was one of the lucky things — a happy accident or blessing in disguise. By not having such a big character like McConaughey, lots of other characters come to the front. So we have very strong female characters, Amber being one of them. My favorite part is that you have a beautiful, charismatic, talented woman in the part, and she doesn't have to be a romantic interest. Girls always seem to be sort of defaulted into that role. And I think that one of the most fascinating things that we did with her character was that Mike and this girl meet on the road. It had some sort of context but it's not a sexual one.

Women in Hollywood have to conform to a certain image: young and skinny. Do you think men are getting the same pressure?

I don't know. I think there are all types. I think in reality things are different and not like in movies and magazines. I know a lot of women that like burly lumberjack-looking men. You don't have to have a six-pack to be a good-looking person, in my opinion.

Usually, it's women who are expected to undress and look sexy on screen. Would you consider "Magic Mike XXL" a feminist film?

Feminism is a very hard word. As a man it's tough for me to say and talk about that. I would never talk about being a feminist as I'm not a woman. And I know you can be, but I'm not going to do that now. I just know that I respect them; I think that we're doing our part for "equal opportunity objectification!"

‘Amy’ summons the young, personable Amy Winehouse

MATT PRIGGE
@mattprigge
matt.prigge@metro.us

“Amy” has gobs of archival footage of doomed musician Amy Winehouse. A24

In her last years, Amy Winehouse was mostly visible as a troubled, makeup-smeared slave to drugs and drink, splattered all over tabloids and articles that blabbed, often with jokes, about how far she’d fallen. But once this era arrives in the intimate Winehouse doc “Amy,” director Asif Kapadia doesn’t fill the screen with such overplayed images. When the musician disappears down a drug hole, we’re made to feel her loss on a gut level, particularly given how the film’s first half prominently boasted the young, pre-fame, absolutely chooglin’ Winehouse.

“Amy” arrives on the heels of a film that is superficially the same, namely Brett Morgen’s “Kurt Cobain: Montage of Heck.” Both have the same general aims: to rescue a doomed musical legend from the public view of them and to portray fame as something, at least in their cases, antithetical to artistic creation. The two films share something else in common: They are almost entirely made with footage that isn’t people sitting in front of cameras, vomiting up exposition and opinions.

It can be disarming, given her turbulent public image in her final days, to see the young, unfailingly personable Winehouse, with truly British teeth, bop about, charming people left and right. Kapadia is careful and gentle when it comes to how to portray the unraveling Winehouse. The images become more abrasive; there are untold shots of paparazzi hounding her, their flashbulbs flashing like machine gun fire. “Amy” is best used as a gutting portrayal of a life force that would have been better off not being the kind of person who earns a film like “Amy.”

Country legend Leon Russell is only sort of the focus of Les Blank’s once lost “A Poem Is a Naked Person,” filmed between 1972 and 1974. JANUS FILMS

‘A Poem Is a Naked Person’

Director: Les Blank
Genre: Documentary
Rating: NR

In 1972, the year the late, great Les Blank began shooting a documentary on him, outlaw country scalawag Leon Russell was a top concert draw whose latest tour bagged $3 million. Two years of filming later, Blank had his movie but not one Russell wanted. Seeing “A Poem Is a Naked Person” — finally legally releasable after 40-some years — it’s easy to see its star’s objections as being more than mere hubris. Russell, a newly minted music god, had received a shapeless, experimental nonnarrative film, less than half of which actually included him. Instead, Blank kept wandering away from his star’s Oklahoma homestead, shooting parties, neighboring artists, well-wishers, old couples, young couples and tractor pulls.

Russell has since come around, realizing Blank had simply made a Les Blank film: one in which he filmed what made him happy or simply fascinated. (Other Blank films hang with Cajun revelers, Mardi Gras partiers and Werner Herzog.) There’s some great music — not just from Russell but also Willie Nelson and George Jones — but it’s more a free-form portrait of outsiders trying to enjoy life outside the prescribed American norms. There’s nothing to fence these people in, and likewise, there’s nothing to force Blank to adhere to some ready-made template. He loves to mix up his images with music and especially loves to shoot setting suns or burning suns or birds or simply the sky as songs play against it. He was trying to capture the intangible and ineffable, and by making a film about an established commodity, he was able to portray him as being, like the filmmaker, truly free. “Poem” is a great movie to get lost in, especially on an oppressive summer day. Its good vibes go down like cool lemonade. MP

ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

This at least provides some nice symmetry for newly single Gwyneth Paltrow. Her ex-husband, Chris Martin, has reportedly called it quits — again — with girlfriend Jennifer Lawrence, according to Us Weekly. "Jen has been working nonstop, and they never saw each other," a source explains of the couple, who previously broke up for a month or so last December. The relationship, as they say, "ran its course."

Now, there are a number of factors at play here. First, there's the whole postdivorce rebound thing, so Martin and Paltrow shouldn't have expected much in the way of longevity from these pairings. Then there was Paltrow's reported insistence that all four of them go on vacation together this summer with their kids, a prospect that would've understandably sent Lawrence and Brad Falchuk running for the exits. But let's not also forget that Lawrence is currently filming another "X-Men" movie — supposedly her last for the franchise — and every time she makes one of those, she ends up back with ex-boyfriend and co-star Nicholas Hoult. It's tough to argue with a franchise.

DRINK SPECIALS THAT DON'T END WITH THE WORKWEEK

For exclusive commentary, visit Metro.us/blogs.

Finding bar deals in Manhattan can be a frustrating venture, especially on weekends. But there are gems out there seven days a week for the budget-minded. Kick back at these bars and go home with money left over for a late-night slice.

Fontana's Bar

105 Eldridge St.

From 2-8 p.m. every day, enjoy $3 drafts and $4 vodka and gin drinks. If that's not enough, they also serve $5 wine and Bloody Marys. The $6 lager-and-shot special rounds out the discounted drinking menu. To go with the daily drink specials is no-cover live music as well. Plan dinner among the sea of Chinatown restaurants in the area, then make this your late-night hangout.

Snafu Bar

127 E. 47th St.

Snafu gets an interesting crowd of Midtown power players and commuters during the week and locals on weekends. Although it's divey, the decor is inviting, with huge painted murals and exposed brick walls. Take advantage of $5 martinis and shots and $8 margaritas, Cosmos and Dark 'n' Stormys daily. For beer drinkers, until 7 p.m., Bud Lights are only $3. There are plush couches and a fireplace in the back, or try your hand at pool downstairs.

Local 138

138 Ludlow St.

From 4-9 p.m. seven days a week, test out all the $3 drafts, wine and well drinks at Local. If you want a relaxed, unpretentious bar, this is the place for you. The bartenders are extremely friendly and happy to pour you a deal, making it the kind of place to hang out all night. If you get there early, try to snag the private small room to the right with your group for a quieter experience.

FIRE UP THE PARTY

From South Street Seaport to 42nd Street, there won't be a bad seat along the East River for Macy's Fireworks Spectacular. We found the best parties to toast the show. RACHEL KASHDAN

Zum Schneider's Big Bang on the East River

SolarOne, 2420 FDR Drive, Stuy Town (Service Road East & 23rd St.)
Put a twist on your all-American barbecue at Big Bang on the East River, hosted by the festive Germans at restaurant and biergarten Zum Schneider. For $99, you'll get hot dogs and corn on the cob, plus bratwurst and endlessly flowing German beer, too. The party, which lasts from 4 to 11:30 p.m., will have DJs and traditional oompah music. It's all right on the river, directly in front of two of the Macy's barges, so you'll have one of the best views in the city.

Crown Victoria Bar and Gardens

60 S. Second St., Williamsburg
Once a police car repair shop (hence the name), Crown Victoria Bar and Gardens is now enjoying its retirement as a hip Williamsburg hangout with a 9,000-square-foot patio about a block from the water. They've got plenty of picnic tables, plus games like Ping-Pong and cornhole while you're waiting for the fireworks to start. They'll be serving a la carte specials beginning at 2 p.m. (until 4 a.m.!) of classic American cookout fare such as ribs, sausages, beer and more, all sourced locally.

Penthouse808 at Ravel Hotel

8-08 Queens Plaza South, LIC
Grab a festive cocktail, snack on gourmet barbecue and dance to the DJs all night long at Ravel Hotel's Penthouse808 rooftop bash in Long Island City. The 21+ party goes from 2 p.m. to midnight, and for just $50 you'll get clear views of the fireworks set against Manhattan's skyline. If you're willing to fork over a bit more dough, for $125 you'll also have access to the observation deck, the hotel's highest point, just one floor up.

Freedom Fest

Pier 15, 78 South St., FiDi
Make a day of it at South Street Seaport, which is hosting free public events beginning at 1 p.m. But when it comes to the best view in Lower Manhattan, roll up to the Freedom Fest barbecue bash on Pier 15, where you'll be watching the show from right on the water. Tickets start at $109 with open bar, DJs and a buffet with Fourth of July staples like burgers and chicken wings. Doors open at 6:15 p.m., and before the fireworks you can explore the pier's observation decks and docked ships.

Brooklyn Bridge Garden Bar

12 Furman St., Brooklyn
With a ticket to this hidden gem tucked among the trees of Brooklyn Bridge Park, you'll have the best seats across the river for the lightshow. Brooklyn Bridge Garden Bar's bash seems like a splurge at $125 per person or $175 for reserved seating and a better view, but the ticket price includes three drinks (including top shelf) and a spot right by the bridge. The 21+ party goes from 6 to 10 p.m. and includes an outdoor buffet of picnic classics like corn on the cob, pulled pork sandwiches and potato salad.

More to the Fourth than fireworks

We've got seven epic ways to have fun all through the Fourth of July weekend.

It's not the Fourth of July until there's a new hot dog-eating king. PROVIDED

On any typical weekend during summer, people are out enjoying themselves everywhere you look, from bars packed to capacity to outdoor movies and parties on rooftops. But if anything, the imperative to have fun is ratcheted up another notch on Independence Day. We found seven events beyond the fireworks to keep you busy.

Monarch Rooftop Party

The weekend begins on Friday night and you're in luck, because Spoiled NYC is hosting a rooftop party at Monarch (71 W. 35th St.), and it's absolutely free to get in. All you have to do is RSVP at SpoiledNYC.com. Indoors is a dance floor and lounge; outside is a patio (with its own bar). This jam starts at 10 p.m., with guest DJ sets from Rodney Hazard and Franco Finelli, and we're bumpin' it until 4 a.m.

Funk-N'-Cue

Why settle for one venue when you can party on an island? Funk-N'-Cue is taking over Governors Island on Friday night beginning at 5 p.m. Roam the beach and relax until showtime, when George Clinton & Parliament Funkadelic take the stage at Governors Club (10 South St.) To tide you over, there'll be a barbecue spread of burgers, spicy sausage, grilled Mexican corn and more. Tickets are $20, or go VIP for $125.

Nathan's Famous Hot Dog-Eating Contest

Because it wouldn't be an American holiday without a little friendly competition and a lot of food, Nathan's Famous Hot Dog-Eating Contest combines both. What began as a "beef" between friends to prove their patriotism back in 1916 is now an event that draws 35,000 spectators — so get there early. The fun begins Saturday at 10 a.m. on Coney Island at the corner of Surf and Stillwell avenues, where you will witness what is perhaps the most notorious "athletic" event in the world.

Dassara's Pig Roast and Seafood Boil

Is stuffing yourself like an out-of-season turkey with delicious food a great way to celebrate America? Well, it's definitely American. On Saturday, get to Dassara (271 Smith St., Brooklyn), which happens to be one of the most delicious ramen restaurants in the five boroughs, for a pig roast and crab blowout from 1-6 p.m. That's not all: There will be live music by Styles Upon Styles, and honeydew melon tea from A B Tea. A plate of pork and sides is $12, and blue crab is $15.

Might Get Weird

Hosted by the Brooklyn based DJ collective The Deep, Might Get Weird will be co-opting the backyard of soul food restaurant Sugar Hill (609 DeKalb Ave., Brooklyn) from noon to 9 p.m. on July 4 and will feature cheap drinks, blasting tunes, kiddie pools (for adults) and a barbecue for $20. Oh, and lots and lots and lots of beautiful day-drinking party people.

Revolutionary Walking Tour

Somewhere in the back of our sun-dappled, beer-soaked brain, we should take a moment to remember that the whole point of this holiday is to celebrate our independence from Britain after the Revolutionary War. Luckily for you history buffs, Big Onion Walking Tours hosts an annual traditional tour of significant NYC landmarks significant to the war, like Alexander Hamilton's grave and Fraunces Tavern, where a British cannonball shot through the roof. So, if this holiday makes you want to feel connected to our nation's history, lace up your sneakers.

Liberty Belle Extravaganza

For a truly patriotic party, don your best red, white and blues and head to Hudson Terrace (621 W. 46th St.) on Saturday for a rooftop party that starts early and won't quit until you do. More than 40 performances, from burlesque to live bands, will entertain you from 3 p.m. until well after the fireworks end. Tickets are $25-$35, though the cocktails and barbecue are a la carte. $47-$147, PennAndTeller OnBroadway.com
With temperatures soaring into the triple digits, everyone in Las Vegas probably wishes they could disappear right about now. So it's a wise move for comedy-magician duo Penn & Teller to take a hiatus from their popular show on the Strip for a six-week stay in NYC, starting next Tuesday at the Marquis Theatre on Broadway (where they debuted in 1987!).

Museum of the City of New York, 1220 Fifth Ave.
$16, MCNY.org
Art has been used to convey social messages in the guise of beauty or entertainment. Often, those colorful missives can lead to real-world change, not to mention chronicle history. That's the idea behind "Posters & Politics: The Art of Activism in New York," a display, discussion and reception at the Museum of the City of New York featuring outspoken activists such as the feminist Guerrilla Girls and comic book artist Seth Tobocman.

FOOD

Dinner Lab

July 9, 7:15 & 8:45 p.m.
Location TBA
$70-$90, DinnerLab.com
It's hard to find truly unique dining experiences, even in this city, but Dinner Lab adds an element of surprise with one-night-only meals featuring talented chefs. Coming up on July 9, Dinner Lab is partnering for the first time with Bombay Sapphire and will include custom cocktails that pair with a "Born in Casablanca" menu by chef Omar Zerrei of The Moroccan Kitchen. You must be a Dinner Lab member ($175) to buy a ticket, so join in advance if you want to receive directions to the top-secret spot next Thursday.

INSIGHT GUIDES TRAVEL WEEKLY

WWW.INSIGHTGUIDES.COM TRAVEL WEEKLY, NEW YORK, THURSDAY, JULY 2, 2015.

CHARLES WILLIAM PELLETIER/AGENCE QMI

Montreal: The funniest city in the world

If you think laughter is the best medicine, head up to Montreal between July 8 and July 28 to take the cure at the Just for Laughs Festival.

KRISTIAN DOWLING

Off-JFL

Cheap laughs

Not all of the shows are big-ticket items, and you'll find names you recognize — Colin Jost of "Saturday Night Live," Wyatt Cenac of "The Daily Show," Ari Shaffir and many more — at surprisingly good prices in intimate venues hosting Off-JFL events.

Now in its 33rd year, Just for Laughs has built a gigantic international reputation for bringing together the biggest and best names in comedy.

Holding the record for the highest number of tickets ever sold at JFL, Dave Chappelle returns to perform no fewer than seven shows at Theatre Maisonneuve (July 20–23), while one of comedy's biggest movie stars is, rather surprisingly, making his first appearance at the festival in "An Evening with Mike Myers." And Kevin Hart is on course to be performing the biggest individual indoor show in the festival's history, at the Bell Centre on July 24.

Twelve gala events are to be hosted by Neil Patrick Harris, Trevor Noah, Norm MacDonald, Jane Lynch, Wanda Sykes, Sir Patrick Stewart, Ellie Kemper and Alan Cumming, and other headliners include Bill Burr, Patton Oswalt, Chris Hardwick, Jason Reitman and "Weird Al" Yankovic.

Comedians from around the world — 19 countries, to be exact — are a big part of the festival, particularly in "The Ethnic Show" at Club Soda (July 8–19), hosted by Alonzo Bodden, with Gina Yashere, Ahmed Ahmed, Frank Spadone, Ronny Chieng, Dan Naturman and Rachid Badouri. British-Iranian actor-comedian, Omid Djalili, has his own show, "Iranalamadingdong."

There are themed shows, too, so if you think relationship issues are a hoot, check out "Date Night" with Brent Morin, Orny Adams, Debra DiGiovanni and Tom Papa. If plain speaking has greater appeal, "The Nasty Show" has hilarious malcontents like Mike Wilmot and Gilbert Gottfried, and the oft-outrageous Jimmy Carr taking the stage to rip at various subjects in the bluntest terms. To get a peek at where Canadian humor is headed, "Homegrown Comics," hosted by Shaun Majumder, is a contest for up-and-coming Canadian comedians.

Alongside all the shows, you'll find plenty going on for free out on the streets of Montreal, including street performers, family fun, music and art. The highlight, on July 21, is a free open-air concert by "Weird Al" Yankovic, the 2015 Grammy winner for Best Comedy Album.

Horoscope

♋ Cancer | June 21-July 22
Social gatherings will be a unique source of entertainment. Noticing how people react in various situations will give you insight into your own behavior.

♌ Leo | July 23-Aug. 22
Overindulgence will lead to neglect. There are lots of groups that will help you get back on track with healthy food choices.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23-Sept. 22
Start fresh. Join a group, club or organization that will provide an interesting diversion from your daily grind. Try out a new sport.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23-Oct. 22
Be careful what you say. You will be upset if someone you have trusted reveals personal details. Don't let anyone take advantage.

♏ Scorpio |Oct. 23-Nov. 21
Others will be more than willing to cooperate if you let them. Trying to do too much on your own will make you anxious. Ask for help when you need it.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22-Dec. 21
Your enthusiasm for your professional goals will make loved ones feel ignored. You should put time aside to focus on them.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22-Jan. 20
A relationship will catch you by surprise. If you have misinterpreted the signals being sent your way, open up a dialogue.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21-Feb. 18
The temptation to try something risky may be strong, but weigh the consequences ahead of time.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19-March 20
Any sound advice or knowledge you receive now should be put to good use. Trying out experiences and meeting new people will add to your expertise and increase your popularity.

♈ Aries | March 21-April 20
Go over financial, legal or personal contracts in detail to avoid making a costly mistake. Time is on your side.

♉ Taurus | April 21-May 21
Travel pursuits will broaden your outlook and inspire your imagination. If you open your eyes to new possibilities, you will find new ways to use your skills.

♊ Gemini | May 22-June 20
Finishing home-improvement projects will give you peace of mind and some free time to help others.

Make Trump eat his words

Donald Trump must not have paid attention in his history classes because he would have known that miscreants came to America from every society. Some of those coming from England on the Mayflower had probably been incarcerated for treason and other offenses. Has he forgotten all the ethnic mafias that thrived in America until they became legitimate businesses? I know here in Harlem, where the Mexicans have restaurants, they are clean and polite. The next time Trump is in Harlem, he should stop by a Jimbo's and see if what he said is true. Are you willing to eat your words?

ERNESTINE MORRISON, VIA EMAIL

Bad move, SCOTUS

A divided United States Supreme Court, in an opinion written by Justice Samuel Alito, decided that Oklahoma may continue with lethal injections. (The case is Glossip v. Gross.) One can understand the motivation behind support of these executions: The petitioners committed horrible crimes. However, as a civilized society, we must seek to be better than those who have committed horrible crimes. As it stands, the risk of enormous suffering during an execution remains to be unacceptably high, and five of the Supreme Court justices chose to simply look the other way.

Money won't buy a ring

NBA. The Knicks will likely be big money spenders in free agency, but it may not be wise.

Money equals power. Money equals laziness. It's human nature to relax a tad once you finally get security at your job or land a new, fat contract. And statistics in pro sports almost always back up the idea that an athlete will perform better when he's hunting for that new deal than he will after he "gets paid."

The NBA free-agent class of 2015 is a star-studded one. LaMarcus Aldridge, Marc Gasol and DeAndre Jordan are about to cash in. The teams that sign these big-name players should beware of a slight drop-off in performance, however. Going back into NBA history, championship teams are almost always centered around a player that a particular franchise drafted as opposed to a player that a particular franchise inked to a bloated deal.

The 2015 Warriors' big three of Stephen Curry, Klay Thompson and Draymond Green were all drafted by Golden State. The 2014 Spurs' big three of Tim Duncan, Tony Parker and Kawhi Leonard were all drafted by San Antonio (Leonard was traded by Indiana on draft night). Dirk Nowitzki, the centerpiece of the Mavericks' run to a title in 2011, was drafted by Dallas in 1998. Kobe Bryant, the centerpiece of the Lakers' run to titles in 2009 and 2010, was drafted by L.A. in 1996. Paul Pierce, the centerpiece to the Celtics' run to the title in 2008, was drafted by Boston in 1998. Dwyane Wade, the centerpiece to Miami's run to the title in 2006, was drafted by the Heat in 2003.

LeBron James has obviously changed the landscape of free agency. In fact, he's a free agent right now — though it's highly unlikely he bolts from Cleveland for a second time. When James has reached the Finals recently, however, his sidekicks have been homegrown talents (Wade in Miami, Kyrie Irving this past season).

Digging deeper into what makes a champion in today's NBA, most of the complementary pieces on these teams came to their franchises via trades and not free agency. Shaq joined Wade in Miami thanks to a trade. Kevin Garnett and Ray Allen were traded to Boston. Pau Gasol was traded to the Lakers. Jason Kidd and Jason Terry were traded to the Mavericks.

Again, the big exception centers around James as he and Chris Bosh inked free-agent deals to join Wade in Miami. But as everyone found out during last month's NBA Finals, James is simply on a different level than any other player in the league. He is part of a separate market.

Teams across the league will back up the Brinks trucks for Aldridge, Gasol and Jordan these next few days in hopes of soon contending for a title. But if history is any indication, making it rain on the free-agent market is highly overrated.

The Nets were busy early in free agency, reportedly re-upping with Brook Lopez and Thaddeus Young.

- The Knicks went hard after free-agent center Greg Monroe, meeting with the Pistons star right after midnight on Wednesday.
- Kevin Love agreed to a five-year deal with the Cavaliers.
- There were mixed reports Wednesday on the Lakers' potential wooing of LaMarcus Aldridge. SB Nation said L.A. "failed to make a strong impression" while ESPN said the Lakers' meeting with the Trail Blazers star went "really well."

LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, PURSUANT TO LAW, that the NYC Dept. of Consumer Affairs will hold a Public Hearing on Wednesday, July 15th at 2:00 p.m. at 42 Broadway, 11th floor, on a petition from Wythe Collective LLC to establish, maintain, and operate an unenclosed sidewalk cafe at 258 Wythe Avenue in the Borough of Brooklyn, for a term of two years.

REQUEST FOR COPIES OF THE PROPOSED REVOCABLE CONSENT AGREEMENT MAY BE ADDRESSED TO: DEPAREMENT OF CONSUMER AFFAIRS, ATTN: FOIL OFFICER 42 BROADWAY, NEW YORK, NEW YORK, NY 10004

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a license, number pending, for Beer & Wine has been applied for by the undersigned to sell Beer & Wine at retail in a Restaurant under the Alcohol Beverage Control Law at 1636 Coney Island Ave, Brooklyn, NY, for on premises consumption. Kosher Delight BK Corp.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a license, number pending, for Beer & Wine has been applied for by the undersigned to sell Beer & Wine at retail in a Restaurant under the Alcohol Beverage Control Law at 363 3rd Ave, New York, NY, for on premises consumption. Great Sichuan 363 Inc.

If you worked as an hourly and/or non-exempt employee at the Europan Bakery Café restaurant located at 135 Columbus Avenue between October 15, 2007 and February 3, 2015 (the "Settlement Class") you could get money from a settlement.

A settlement of a class action lawsuit (Moises Dolores, et al. v. Europan Café, LLC) has been reached. The lawsuit claims that the restaurant did not pay non-exempt employees minimum wage, overtime premiums, and spread of hours premiums, and withheld certain gratuities from delivery workers. Europan Café and the other Defendants deny these allegations and any liability or wrongdoing.
The settlement provides $242,160.38 to be distributed to class members based on the number of workweeks they worked during the Class Period, whether they worked full or part-time, and whether they worked as a delivery employee.
If you believe that you are entitled to receive settlement funds, you must contact Class Counsel, Pelton & Associates PC by phone 212-385-9700, by email at pelton@peltonlaw.com or in person at 111 Broadway, Suite 1503, New York, NY 10006, to confirm your membership in the settlement class and update your contact information. If you do not contact Class Counsel by October 12, 2015, you will not be able to obtain money from the settlement.
For more information: (212) 385-9700 or pelton@peltonlaw.com
